1. Organizational Chart

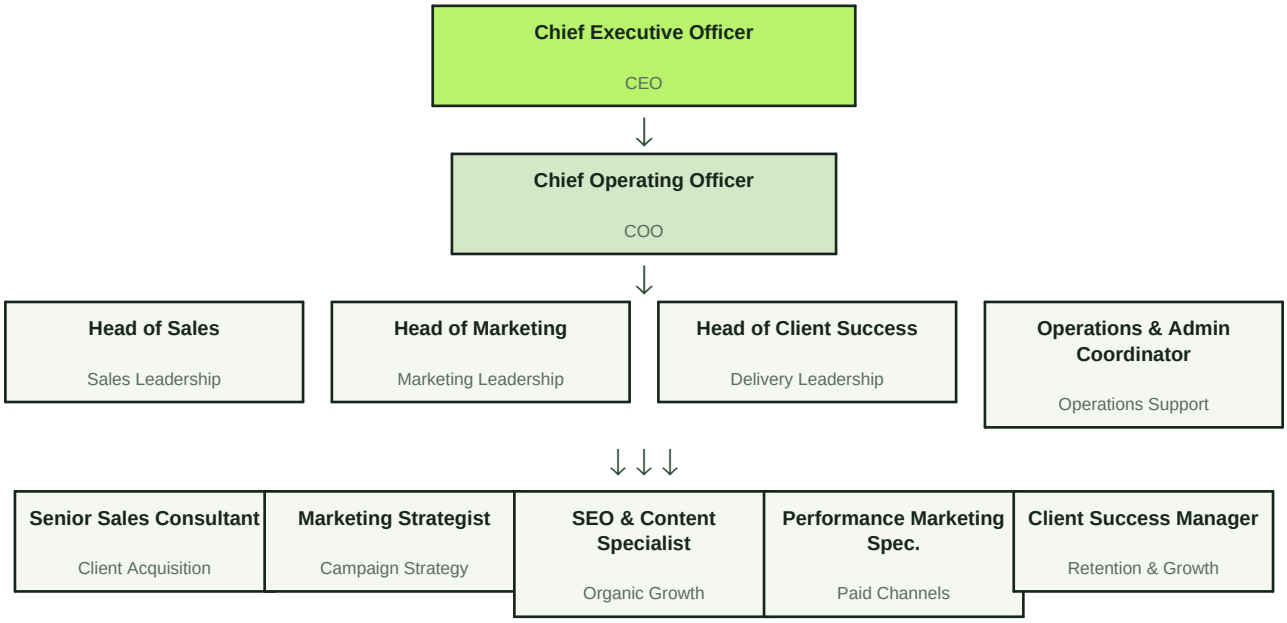
The structure below shows how responsibilities and decision-making authority flow across LaunchPoint Growth. The company is organized into four primary functions under the Chief Operating Officer: Sales, Marketing, Client Success, and Operations. This design supports clear accountability while enabling cross-team collaboration essential to delivering integrated growth strategies for startup clients.



Reporting relationships at a glance

- CEO provides strategic direction and holds final accountability for company performance and major client commitments.
- COO oversees day-to-day operations, resource allocation, and cross-functional delivery quality.
- Functional Heads (Sales, Marketing, Client Success) own their domain KPIs and manage their direct reports.
- Specialists execute workstreams and escalate decisions outside their approval limits to their Head or COO.
- Operations & Administration Coordinator supports all teams on process, tools, and administrative matters.

2. Guiding Principles of the Structure

LaunchPoint Growth is a lean consultancy. The organizational design balances specialization with collaboration so that every client engagement receives coherent strategy, execution, and measurement.

- Clarity of ownership — Every major workstream (lead generation, campaign execution, client delivery, operations) has a single accountable owner.
- Empowered specialists — Team members closest to the work hold decision rights within defined limits; escalation is reserved for exceptions.
- Integrated growth — Sales, marketing, and client success share goals and regularly coordinate so client plans remain consistent end-to-end.
- Scalable processes — Roles and approval thresholds are designed to support growth without constant structural redesign.
- Client-centric accountability — Ultimate success is measured by client outcomes (pipeline quality, conversion, retained revenue) rather than internal activity alone.

The eleven positions described in this document cover leadership, delivery, and support functions required to serve early-stage and growth-stage startup clients across market research, positioning, digital marketing, sales strategy, and performance insight services.

3. Job Descriptions

Each role includes reporting relationships, core responsibilities, decision-making boundaries, approval limits, and expected cross-team coordination. Descriptions are intentionally concise to support day-to-day clarity.

3.1 Chief Executive Officer (CEO)

Reports to: Board / Founders | Direct reports: COO

Purpose: Sets company vision, strategy, and culture; owns overall business performance and major external relationships.

Key Responsibilities

- Define and communicate long-term strategy, service portfolio, and market positioning.
- Approve annual operating plan, budgets, and major resource allocations.
- Lead high-value client relationships and strategic partnerships.
- Represent the company externally (investors, media, industry forums).
- Hire and develop the senior leadership team; set performance expectations for the COO.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Final authority on strategy, brand positioning, and entry into new service lines or markets.
- Approve contracts or commitments above the COO's delegated limit.
- Approve senior hires (Heads and above) and major organizational changes.

Cross-Team Coordination

- Works closely with COO on operational health and capacity planning.
- Engages Heads of Sales, Marketing, and Client Success on major pitch or retention decisions.
- Coordinates with external advisors or partners as needed.

Typical approval authority: Unlimited within board-approved strategy and budget framework; personal sign-off required for commitments exceeding COO limits or involving material brand/reputation risk.

3.2 Chief Operating Officer (COO)

Reports to: CEO | Direct reports: Head of Sales, Head of Marketing, Head of Client Success, Operations & Administration Coordinator

Purpose: Translates strategy into reliable delivery; owns day-to-day operations, resource allocation, process quality, and cross-functional performance.

Key Responsibilities

- Oversee the integrated delivery of client engagements across sales, marketing, and success functions.
- Manage company capacity, prioritization of projects, and utilization of specialist resources.
- Establish and monitor operating rhythms (weekly reviews, pipeline and delivery stand-ups).
- Ensure consistent use of tools, templates, and quality standards.
- Own financial performance against budget at operational level and escalate risks early.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Approve operational expenditures and project resource plans within annual budget.
- Resolve cross-functional conflicts that cannot be settled at Head level.
- Authorize temporary reallocation of specialists across teams to meet client needs.

Cross-Team Coordination

- Daily collaboration with all three functional Heads and the Operations Coordinator.
- Regular alignment with CEO on strategic risks, capacity, and major client issues.
- Supports Sales and Client Success on complex commercial negotiations when required.

Typical approval authority: Operational spend and client-related commitments up to the limit set in the annual budget (typically mid-five figures); escalates larger or strategic items to CEO.

3.3 Head of Sales

Reports to: COO | Direct reports: Senior Sales Consultant

Purpose: Owns the new-business pipeline, sales process, and revenue targets from first contact through closed-won.

Key Responsibilities

- Build and manage the sales pipeline; set and track monthly and quarterly targets.
- Design and refine the sales methodology, qualification criteria, and proposal standards.
- Lead or support high-value pitches and commercial negotiations.
- Coach the Senior Sales Consultant and ensure accurate CRM hygiene.
- Collaborate with Marketing on lead quality and with Client Success on smooth handovers.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Approve standard commercial terms and discounts within published guidelines.
- Decide which opportunities to pursue or disqualify based on fit and capacity.
- Escalate non-standard pricing, multi-year deals, or high-risk commitments to COO/CEO.

Cross-Team Coordination

- Weekly pipeline reviews with Senior Sales Consultant and COO.
- Joint planning with Head of Marketing on campaigns and lead definition.

- Structured handover meetings with Head of Client Success for every new engagement.

Typical approval authority: Standard proposals and discounts within guideline matrix; non-standard commercial terms require COO (or CEO for strategic accounts) approval.

3.4 Head of Marketing

Reports to: COO | Direct reports: Marketing Strategist, SEO & Content Specialist, Performance Marketing Specialist

Purpose: Owns brand positioning, demand generation, content, and paid/organic channels that feed the sales pipeline and support client work.

Key Responsibilities

- Set marketing strategy, channel mix, and annual marketing plan aligned to revenue goals.
- Oversee brand consistency, messaging, and thought-leadership output.
- Manage performance of organic (SEO/content) and paid channels; own marketing ROI.
- Provide marketing support for key client campaigns when scoped into engagements.
- Lead the marketing team and ensure clear prioritization of internal vs. client work.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Approve campaign concepts, content calendars, and paid media budgets within allocated marketing budget.
- Decide channel prioritization and pause/scale decisions based on performance data.
- Escalate significant brand or messaging changes, or budget overruns, to COO.

Cross-Team Coordination

- Close partnership with Head of Sales on lead quality, ICP definition, and campaign feedback.
- Supports Head of Client Success with client-facing marketing assets and reporting.
- Coordinates with Operations on tools, analytics access, and vendor management.

Typical approval authority: Marketing budget and campaign spend within annual allocation; media and production commitments above threshold require COO sign-off.

3.5 Head of Client Success

Reports to: COO | Direct reports: Client Success Manager

Purpose: Owns post-sale delivery quality, client satisfaction, retention, and expansion opportunities.

Key Responsibilities

- Design and govern the client engagement process from kickoff through ongoing reviews.
- Ensure delivery plans meet scope, timeline, and outcome commitments.
- Monitor client health, NPS/satisfaction signals, and renewal/expansion pipeline.
- Coach the Client Success Manager and escalate delivery risks early.
- Capture insights from live work to improve offerings and internal processes.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Approve standard scope changes and timeline adjustments within original commercial boundaries.
- Authorize modest additional work that stays inside existing fee structures.
- Escalate material scope expansions, delivery failures, or at-risk relationships to COO.

Cross-Team Coordination

- Receives structured handovers from Sales and aligns with Marketing on client campaign support.
- Feeds product/service improvement ideas back to CEO/COO and functional Heads.
- Works with Operations on resourcing and capacity for active engagements.

Typical approval authority: Scope and timeline adjustments within original contract value; expansions or credits beyond defined thresholds require COO approval.

3.6 Senior Sales Consultant

Reports to: Head of Sales | Direct reports: None

Purpose: Generates and qualifies opportunities, runs the sales process for assigned accounts, and converts qualified leads into signed engagements.

Key Responsibilities

- Prospect, qualify, and progress opportunities through the defined sales stages.
- Conduct discovery calls, prepare proposals, and present solutions to prospective clients.
- Maintain accurate and timely records in the CRM.
- Collaborate with marketing and specialists to tailor proposals and demos.
- Support Head of Sales on larger or strategic opportunities as required.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Qualify or disqualify leads against ICP and capacity guidelines.
- Propose standard packages and pricing within published rates.

- Escalate custom pricing, complex multi-service deals, or objections requiring senior involvement.

Cross-Team Coordination

- Works daily with Head of Sales; coordinates with Marketing Strategist and specialists for proposal support.
- Participates in handover calls with Client Success for every closed deal.
- Shares market feedback with Marketing and leadership.

Typical approval authority: Standard proposals at list or guideline pricing; any discount or custom commercial term requires Head of Sales approval.

3.7 Marketing Strategist

Reports to: Head of Marketing | Direct reports: None (collaborates with SEO & Content and Performance Marketing specialists)

Purpose: Designs integrated marketing strategies and campaign frameworks for both company growth and selected client engagements.

Key Responsibilities

- Develop positioning, messaging, and campaign strategies aligned to target audiences.
- Translate business goals into channel plans, content themes, and measurement frameworks.
- Brief and coordinate SEO/Content and Performance Marketing specialists on campaign execution.
- Analyze campaign results and recommend optimizations.
- Support client workshops and strategy deliverables when assigned.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Recommend channel mix and messaging; execute within approved campaign briefs and budgets.
- Escalate major messaging or brand shifts, or budget changes, to Head of Marketing.

Cross-Team Coordination

- Works closely with SEO & Content Specialist and Performance Marketing Specialist on execution.
- Aligns with Head of Sales on lead-generation priorities and with Client Success on client-facing plans.
- Contributes insights to company-level marketing planning.

Typical approval authority: Campaign recommendations and creative direction within approved briefs; budget or brand changes require Head of Marketing approval.

3.8 SEO & Content Specialist

Reports to: Head of Marketing | Direct reports: None

Purpose: Drives organic visibility and content that supports brand authority, inbound leads, and client deliverables.

Key Responsibilities

- Plan and execute SEO strategy (technical, on-page, content) for company and selected client properties.
- Create or oversee high-quality content (articles, landing pages, case studies, social).
- Monitor rankings, organic traffic, and content performance; iterate based on data.
- Collaborate with Marketing Strategist on content calendars and themes.
- Support client content and SEO workstreams as scoped.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Decide content topics, formats, and optimization tactics within approved strategy and brand guidelines.
- Escalate significant site architecture changes or resource needs beyond normal capacity.

Cross-Team Coordination

- Daily coordination with Marketing Strategist and Performance Marketing Specialist.
- Provides content assets and organic performance insights to Sales and Client Success as needed.
- Works with Operations on publishing tools and analytics access.

Typical approval authority: Content production and on-page SEO changes within brand and strategy guidelines; structural or budget requests require Head of Marketing approval.

3.9 Performance Marketing Specialist

Reports to: Head of Marketing | Direct reports: None

Purpose: Owns paid media and performance channels that generate measurable leads and support client acquisition campaigns.

Key Responsibilities

- Plan, launch, and optimize paid campaigns across relevant platforms (search, social, display, etc.).
- Manage budgets, targeting, creative testing, and conversion tracking.
- Report performance against CAC, ROAS, and lead-quality targets.
- Recommend scaling, pausing, or reallocating spend based on data.
- Support client paid-media work when included in engagement scope.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Adjust bids, audiences, and creative within approved campaign budgets and KPIs.
- Escalate budget increases, new channel experiments, or significant underperformance to Head of Marketing.

Cross-Team Coordination

- Works tightly with Marketing Strategist on campaign briefs and with SEO & Content on landing-page and message alignment.
- Shares lead quality feedback with Head of Sales and Senior Sales Consultant.
- Coordinates with Operations on ad-account access, billing, and tracking setup.

Typical approval authority: Day-to-day optimization within approved media budgets; increases or new channel spend require Head of Marketing (or COO for larger sums) approval.

3.10 Client Success Manager

Reports to: Head of Client Success | Direct reports: None

Purpose: Owns the day-to-day relationship and delivery experience for assigned clients, ensuring outcomes, satisfaction, and retention.

Key Responsibilities

- Lead kickoffs, maintain delivery plans, and run regular client check-ins and reviews.
- Coordinate internal specialists to deliver scoped work on time and to quality standards.
- Track progress against agreed outcomes and surface risks early.
- Identify expansion or renewal opportunities and support commercial conversations.
- Document learnings and contribute to process improvement.

Decision-Making Boundaries & Approval Limits

- Manage day-to-day delivery decisions and minor scope clarifications within original agreement.

- Acts as a central point for operational requests that cross team boundaries.
- Works closely with COO on continuous improvement of internal systems.

Typical approval authority: Routine operational actions within policy; any financial commitment or process change with material impact requires COO approval.

4. Decision Rights Summary

The table below summarizes primary decision domains and the lowest level that can normally approve them. When in doubt, escalate one level. All team members are expected to flag material risks early.

Decision Domain	Specialist / Manager	Functional Head	COO	CEO
Standard proposal / list pricing	Senior Sales Consultant	Head of Sales (oversight)	—	—
Discount or non-standard terms	Escalate	Head of Sales (guideline)	Above guideline	Strategic / large deals
Marketing campaign spend (within budget)	Performance / SEO specialists (execute)	Head of Marketing	Overruns / new channels	Major brand shifts
Client scope change (minor)	Client Success Manager	Head of Client Success	Material expansion	—
Hiring (specialist level)	—	Recommend	Approve	Senior / Head level
Tool / vendor spend (ops)	Ops Coordinator (routine)	—	Approve	Strategic platforms
New service line or market	—	Input	Recommend	Approve

Note: “Guideline” refers to the commercial and discount matrix maintained by Sales and approved by the COO/CEO. Any decision that creates material financial, legal, or reputational exposure should be escalated regardless of the table above.

5. Cross-Team Coordination Model

Integrated growth requires deliberate coordination. The following rhythms and interfaces keep Sales, Marketing, and Client Success aligned without creating unnecessary meetings.

Core coordination rhythms

• Weekly Leadership Sync (CEO + COO + Heads) — Pipeline health, delivery capacity, major risks, and priority decisions.

• Sales–Marketing Stand-up — Lead quality, campaign performance, and upcoming outreach or content needs.

• Client Handover Protocol — Formal transfer from Sales to Client Success at closed-won, with Marketing specialists briefed when campaigns are in scope.

• Monthly Performance Review — Shared view of leads, conversion, revenue, client health, and marketing ROI; owned by COO with input from all Heads.

• Ad-hoc project squads — Temporary cross-functional teams formed for complex client engagements or internal initiatives, coordinated by the relevant Head or COO.

Key interfaces

• Sales ↔ Marketing: Shared ICP definition, lead scoring, and closed-loop feedback on lead quality and messaging effectiveness.
• Sales ↔ Client Success: Structured handover package (scope, stakeholders, success metrics, commercial terms) and joint presence on early client calls when helpful.
• Marketing ↔ Client Success: Campaign and content support for active clients; feedback on what messaging and assets resonate in live work.
• All teams ↔ Operations: Single point for tools, access, scheduling, and process questions so specialists stay focused on client outcomes.

This structure and the associated decision rights are designed to keep LaunchPoint Growth agile, accountable, and client-focused as the company grows. Roles and limits should be reviewed at least annually or when the team size or service mix changes materially.
